HUMAN

QUALITY OF LIFE

TREE OF LIFE

Monark Residences is named for the concept that it is intended to be a location where grandeur and royalty are intermingled. The community adopted the concept of the Tree of Life which is derived from the Quality of Life concept standing for the emergence of cohesive and expanding communities. The human, social, and environmental components of the theory are each represented by one of the three circles of Monark's symbol.

Monark employees and the tone of voice they use while speaking to clients and residents transmit the human aspect, which helps build and develop personal ties. The social component emphasizes the creation of fully developed communities where citizens may experience royalty and forge relationships with those around them. The environmental component highlights Monark's commitment to sustainability and being environmentally friendly.
